The Generations of God Steven D. Fisher

The Generation of God is based on LDS theology interpreted by the author. It describes the progression of the elect seed of God through different probation's on their course of becoming God the Father. The priesthood of God is also discussed. What it is, who has held it through the history of the earth and who will hold it in the future. Three different definitions of eternity is presented: the solar system eternity, the galaxy eternity and the universe eternity. The existence of composite beings is discussed. A definition of cherubim and seraphim is presented. Completing the book are chapters on the generation of Satan and his angels. The four generations of the elect of God are opposed by four generations of sons of perdition. There is opposition in all things on all levels of existence. I have enjoyed immensely contemplating the mysteries of Godhood. I hope I will never cease to do so. The book is not complete, but then it will never be complete, but I present my thoughts and ideas in their present form, expecting for somethings to change and evolve.
