Children in Danger: Coping with the Consequences of Community Violence (A joint publication in the Jossey-Bass social and behavioral science series and the Jossey-Bass education series) James Garbarino, Nancy Dubrow, Kathleen Kostelny, Carole Pardo

By the time they were five, virtually all the children in a public housing project had firsthand knowledge of shootings, stabbings, and homicide. They lived not in Beirut but Chicago. Now the authors reveal how chronic violence affects a child's growth, exploration, and psychological development and show how teachers and social workers can help "to restore the child to childhood".
