Lisa Meets Her Match Gary M. Crist

After achieving revenge for the brutal rape she had endured at the hands of her mentor when she was just a twenty-one-year-old aspiring professional golfer, Lisa Johanssen flees Miami to Venezuela. The revenge she exacted included the murder of Hank Detmer and the embezzlement of five million dollars of golf tournament prize money. She is met in Caracas by Mario LaMay, an ex F1 racecar driver whose current profession is that of "Facilitator" specializing in assisting fugitives. The relationship quickly evolves from a business arrangement to mutual infatuation. Mario introduces the athletically-gifted Lisa to the world of sports car racing, but things go all wrong when she crashes on the Isla de Margarita. The crash is orchestrated by the insurance investigator Peligro, who has been retained to recover the stolen prize money. Lisa is kidnapped back to the mainland, confined and subjected to merciless abuse in Peligro's efforts to get her to divulge the bank number account information he demands. But Mario has dealt with Peligro before, and takes on the challenge of rescuing Lisa from his evil clutches.

Four years pass as Lisa secures her new identity as a Latina. Mario schools her in racing in the Formula 1 feeder series in South America and the Caribbean. She wins the Formula 3 championship and she and Mario, now married, return to the U.S. with an ambitious new goal--for Lisa to become the first woman to win the Indy 500. But fate intervenes before Lisa can make it to Indy. Against Mario's advice, she accepts an offer to drive in the Rolex 24 sports car endurance race in Daytona. The race team is headed by Mario's old F1 rival, Guiseppe Revolta, who learns of Lisa's criminal past and seeks to use it to blackmail her out of her and Mario's fortune. "Lisa Meets Her Match" is a wild, sexy ride, where another cast of sometimes kooky, but always unforgettable characters weaves an intricate, fast-moving plot, filled with excitement, thrills, spills, chills and ultimately--justice and revenge.
