My mission is to capture time. Through painting I feel I can make the moment stand still, to make its beauty last, says British artist Rosalind Wise. She achieves this goal by creating fresh, lively, large-format paintings of gardens, meadows, wetlands, and other natural vistas. She often makes quick plein air sketches during her morning walks, recording the relationships of plants growing together naturally. Later, in her home studio, she works from her studies, collected specimens, and photographs to complete her oils on canvas. Twelve of her gorgeous paintings grace this calendar.
